GAM score and PSEA Network membership

Appealing organizations and their implementing partners must be members of the PSEA Network

Each project will need to include Gender & Age Marker (GAM) score and reference number

Gender Responsive Humanitarian Programming

Aim

- Design, implement and monitor programmes that respond to gender, age, and disability differences
- That demonstrate relevance, responsiveness, accountability, to the different needs, experiences, capacities and roles of women, girls, men, and boys of different age, gender-diverse, and persons with disabilities in the Rohingya Refugees in the Camps

Gender Responsive Humanitarian Programming using Gender with age marker tool (GAM)

ISCG support

- GiHA WG /Sector Gender Focal Points briefing (27 October 2024)
- Sector and Partner meetings on GAM (ongoing)
- Sector Gender Focal Point participation during Peer Review process

Example | Gender analysis (max. 150 words)

Gender inequalities in education in the Rohingya refugee context are characterized by limited access to education for girls due to cultural norms and economic constraints. For instance, preliminary data from ISNA 2024 indicated 9.5% of girl children as doing 7 hours or more of domestic & care work per day compared to just 4.6% among boys.

Early marriage and safety concerns further hinder girls' education. Shortages of female teachers and inadequate facilities exacerbate these challenges.

According to XYZ study, efforts to address these inequalities may involve community engagement, recruiting and training female teachers, creating safe learning environments, policy changes, and flexible learning opportunities for girls.

Gender with Age Marker (GAM) step by step

Questions on the design and monitoring of your project will generate your score (0-4):

- 1. Gender analysis – Disaggregated data
- 2. Tailored assistance – Targeted or mainstreamed activities; coordination
- 3. Adequate participation (influence of participants) – CFRM, CwC
- 4. Benefits – Evaluation of satisfaction for different project participants, addressing problems

GAM online system

FOR REFLECTION: Discuss how benefits for groups of concern identified in the analysis (GEM A) will be reported. Recording your response is recommended for reference in monitoring.

less than 150 words

* Briefly describe the benefits expected from activities aimed at transforming gender roles and/or relations.

FAQ: Partner Status and JRP inclusion

Q Do organizations need to be registered in Bangladesh to be included in the JRP?

A Yes.

Q Can any organization appeal through the JRP?

A An appealing partner is an organization raising funds directly from member states/countries through the JRP as part of a sector within the refugee response in Bangladesh. This does not include partners receiving or raising funds through the UN, NGOs, private sector, religious groups and other such entities.

Q We are an implementing partner of a UN agency/NGO. Who will submit the proposal?

A The appealing organization. Implementing partners can be listed in the project sheet.

Q How are projects reviewed?

A The Sector Peer Review process will assess the overall quality, impact, feasibility, integration of cross-cutting issues, budgetary allocations, and strategic harmony of individual projects proposed by appealing partners, to avoid duplication and ensure alignment with prioritized activities based on assessed needs.

Q Does inclusion in the JRP guarantee that my project will be funded?

A No, this depends on how much funding is raised by the appealing partner. All appealing partners are expected to have a fundraising strategy.
